Wage Survey Report

Dallas – Fort Worth Building Construction Wage Rates

U.S. Department of Labor
Employment Standards Administration
Wage and Hour Division
Washington, D.C.

PREFACE

The Department of Labor's Employment Standards Administration is responsible for issuing prevailing wage rates under the Davis-Bacon and Related Acts. Increasingly, these wage determinations and the surveys on which they are based have been the subject of numerous inquiries from construction contractors, unions, and associations. Such "interested parties" want to know many details about the procedures and data that result in the issuance of Davis-Bacon wage schedules.

Since 1985, the Employment Standards Administration has launched several initiatives to accommodate the intense interest in Davis-Bacon wage determinations. These included development and publication of the "Davis-Bacon Construction Wage Determinations Manual of Operations," publication of "General Wage Determinations Issued Under The Davis-Bacon And Related Acts," and production and distribution of a slide and video briefing on the conduct of Davis-Bacon wage surveys.

This "Davis-Bacon Wage Survey Report: Dallas-Fort Worth Building Construction Wage Rates," reflects the latest effort to improve understanding of the Davis-Bacon wage determinations process. The report provides comprehensive information about the survey data and procedures used to issue a new wage determination for the Dallas-Fort Worth area, site of the Superconducting Super Collider.

We wish to express our thanks to each of the construction contractors, unions, and associations that provided information for this survey (see Appendix E).

William C. Brooks
Assistant Secretary

FOREWORD

The Davis-Bacon and Related Acts provide prevailing wage protection to workers on federal construction projects. These laws require the payment of locally prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits to laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors performing work on federally financed or assisted construction projects valued in excess of $2,000.

The Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division conducts a national program of construction wage surveys in order to determine locally prevailing wages. Each year, thousands of construction contractors, subcontractors, unions, and associations provide payroll data used to compute wage rates that prevail for the purpose of Davis-Bacon requirements.

This wage survey report is intended to enhance interested party understanding of the origin of a Davis-Bacon prevailing wage determination, and to encourage participation in wage surveys. The report presents the findings of a Davis-Bacon survey of Dallas-Fort Worth building construction active from April 1, 1988 through June 30, 1988.

Acting Administrator

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Appreciation is expressed to the Employment Standards Administration's Dallas Regional Administrator, Bill Belt, and the Region's Wage Specialist, James Reed, and his staff, Deborah Hollins and Shirley Ebbesen, who conducted the wage survey that forms the basis of this report.

The Davis-Bacon Wage Survey Report, "Dallas-Fort Worth Building Construction Wage Rates" was prepared by the Wage and Hour Division of the Employment Standards Administration, U.S. Department of Labor. The report was planned and developed under the direction of William W. Gross, Acting Assistant Administrator, Office of Program Operations. Dr. Alan L. Moss, Director, Division of Wage Determinations, conceived the report format and guided its preparation. Coordination, composition, and editing were provided by Ethel P. Miller, Chief, Branch of Construction Wage Determinations; John E. Frank, and Philip J. Gloss, Branch Section Chiefs; and Pamela Lee, Barbara Shaffer, and Terry Sullivan, Salary and Wage Specialists. Kim Alston typed the report manuscript.

DAVIS-BACON WAGE SURVEY REPORT
JANUARY 1990

DALLAS-FORT WORTH BUILDING CONSTRUCTION WAGE RATES

INTRODUCTION

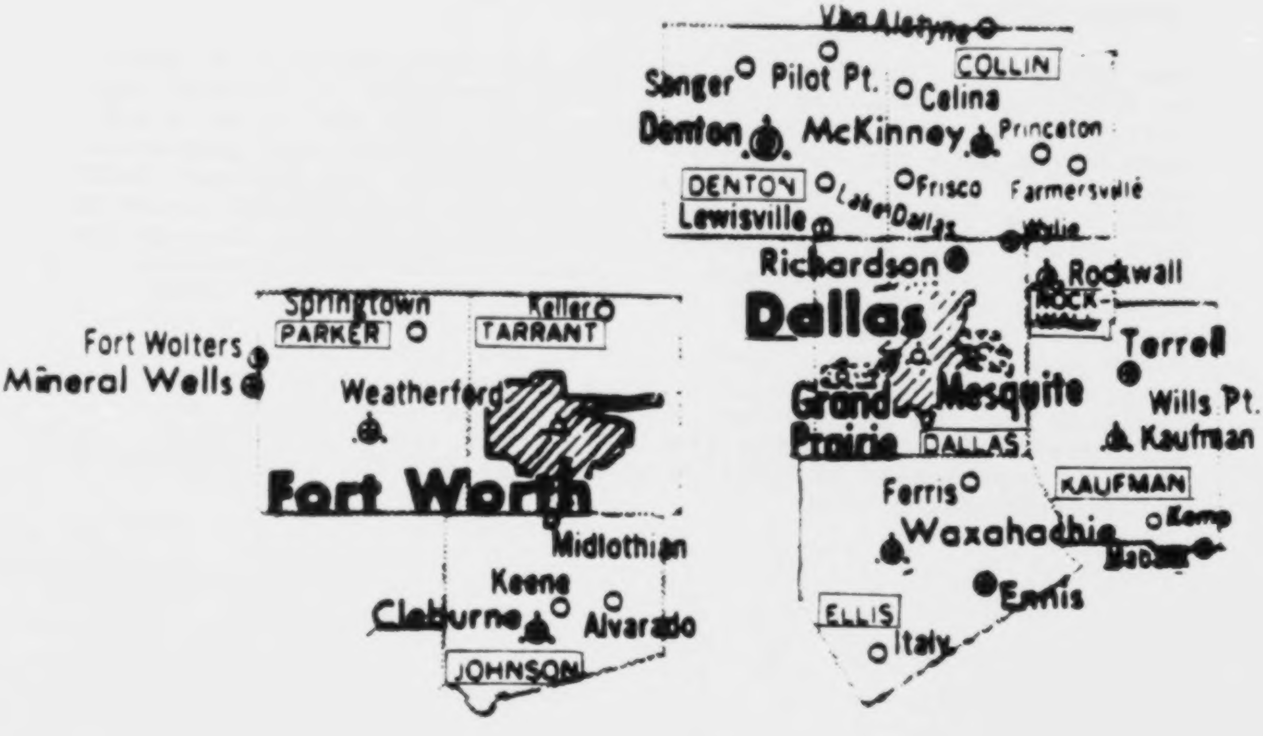
The Davis-Bacon and Related Acts require the Secretary of Labor to determine prevailing wage rates for inclusion in covered construction contracts. The prevailing wage rates are to be based upon wages paid "corresponding classes of laborers and mechanics employed on projects of a character similar to the contract work" in the area (usually a county) in which the construction is to be performed. This federal mandate has been met largely through the conduct of wage surveys, and the use of collective bargaining agreements when it has been determined that union wage rates prevail. Davis-Bacon wage surveys are conducted under procedures and methodology as set forth in the "Construction Wage Determinations Manual of Operations." This Wage Survey Report explains how the Dallas-Fort Worth building wage survey was conducted. It also covers the survey data and analysis performed to determine prevailing wage rates for the nine-county Dallas-Fort Worth area.

SURVEY PARAMETERS AND PROCESS

The Dallas-Fort Worth area was selected for survey based upon criteria specified in the Uniform Survey Planning Procedure, as set forth in the "Davis-Bacon Construction Wage Determinations Manual of Operations." Paramount in the selection of this area were the several years that had elapsed since the previous Davis-Bacon survey was conducted there, and the significant volume of Federal construction expected, including that connected with the Superconducting Super Collider.

The geographic scope of the survey included two Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSAs), Dallas and Fort Worth. The Dallas MSA consists of Collin, Dallas, Denton, Ellis, Kaufman and Rockwall Counties. The counties of Johnson, Parker and Tarrant comprise the Fort Worth MSA (see MAP 1).

Map 1 - Counties Surveyed and the Two Designated Metropolitan Statistical Areas



As a matter of longstanding policy, the Wage and Hour Division has distinguished four general types of construction for purposes of making prevailing wage rate determinations: building construction, residential construction, heavy construction, and highway construction. This survey covers only building construction projects. The Wage and Hour Division's All Agency Memoranda Numbers 130 and 131 define building construction as the construction of sheltered enclosures with walk-in access for the purpose of housing persons, machinery, equipment, or supplies. It includes all construction of such structures, the installation of utilities and equipment, both above and below grade level, as well as incidental grading, utilities, and paving, unless there is an established area practice to the contrary. Building construction includes, but is not limited to commercial buildings, apartment buildings (5 stories and above), industrial buildings, alterations and additions to nonresidential buildings, and the remodeling, renovating, and repairing of buildings.

Wage data from building projects that were completed or under construction from April 1, 1988 through June 30, 1988 were considered for inclusion in the survey. This three-month survey reference period was identified in accordance with established criteria, based upon the number of construction projects in the survey universe. It was estimated that about 2,000 active building projects would be available for survey in the Dallas-Fort Worth area during the survey time frame, a number sufficient to present an accurate picture of the prevailing wage rates.

On October 26, 1988, letters of advance notification of this survey were sent to 36 local trade associations and building trade unions, 20 national associations and unions, nine Congressmen, and both Texas Senators. Letters to general contractors requesting survey data and identification of their subcontractors were mailed on November 17, 1988.

Additional notification letters were mailed to the relevant contruction subcontractors as they were identified by the general contractors. However, since most subcontractors were not identified early in the survey process, staff of the Dallas Wage and Hour Regional Office made numerous follow-up telephone calls to the subcontractors identified to help ensure an acceptable level of response.

SURVEY RESPONSE

AREAWIDE

Initial letters requesting contractors to participate in this survey were sent to 1,932 general contractors and 4,078 subcontractors. These construction firms worked on 3,306 building construction projects in Collin, Dallas, Denton, Ellis, Johnson, Kaufman, Parker, Rockwall and Tarrant Counties, Texas.

Data were received from 490 general contractors and 2,154 subcontractors, that worked on 1,766 construction projects. In this regard, 278 general contractors and 1,501 subcontractors submitted usable data.* These firms worked on 1,031 building construction projects, which were completed or under construction during the survey time frame of April 1, 1988 through June 30, 1988. The overall survey usable response rate was 32.4 percent. In general, data submitted but not used were rejected because the relevant project had not begun; the data were for material suppliers; the data were inconsistent and could not be clarified; or the data were postmarked after March 15, 1989, the survey cutoff date.

Wage payment data were furnished for 17,588 workers in 81 job classifications. For a list of the classifications covered, see Table 1.

BY COUNTY

Wage data were provided from projects in each of the nine counties included in the survey area. However, the bulk of the data were from projects in Dallas, Tarrant, Collin, and Denton Counties. The following information sets forth a detailed description of the survey response by county.

ANALYTICAL PROCEDURES

Survey Criteria. In general, a survey is considered acceptable only when all the relevant survey criteria referenced in the "Davis-Bacon Construction Wage Determinations Manual of Operations" have been met. These criteria are utilized to ensure that surveys properly observe established time frames, construction types, geographic areas, classifications, area practices, and accepted procedures for data adequacy, data computation, and survey notification.

Data Adequacy. Survey data adequacy is examined through use of the overall usable response rate as well as minimum employment criterion for individual classes. The overall usable response rate for an otherwise acceptable survey must meet or exceed 25 percent. The usable response rate is computed by dividing the number of responses received that provide usable survey data by the total number of contacts made with general contractors and subcontractors. In most instances, when the survey response rate equals at least 25 percent, data will be received for a substantial number of workers in each of the major job classes. However, for surveys conducted in counties where construction is sparse, or for highly specialized classes, the number of employees for whom data are provided may be limited. In such cases, a wage rate for an individual job class can be determined under established survey criteria only when information on at least six workers is received from three or more contractors, none of which account for 60 percent or more of total reported employees. However, when the overall usable response rate is 50 percent or more, data on only three workers from two contractors may be utilized.

Since the overall usable response rate for this survey was more than 25 percent but less than 50 percent--32.4 percent--the more stringent criterion was applied. The failure of the survey data to meet this requirement was the reason many of the classifications, for which some data were provided, were excluded from the new survey schedules. Such exclusions also led to the need for survey data for several counties to be combined in the formation of wage schedules issued.

Data adequacy also requires that the minimum employment criterion be met for half or more of the key classes expected for the type of construction being surveyed. The sixteen key classifications necessary for a building construction survey are: asbestos workers, bricklayers, boilermakers, carpenters, cement masons, electricians, ironworkers (including rebar and/or steel erectors), common laborers, painters, pipefitters, plumbers, power equipment operators, roofers, sheet metal workers, tile setters, and truck drivers.

The Davis-Bacon Regulations require that in making a wage determination, the "area" will normally be the county, unless sufficient current wage data are unavailable. In this regard, nonfederally assisted building construction wage data are analyzed first. If those data are insufficient, federally assisted building construction wage data are also considered. When a combination of the non-federal and federal wage data are insufficient to form the basis of a wage determination, wages paid on similar construction in surrounding counties may then be considered. However, projects in metropolitan counties may not be used as a source of data for a wage determination for a rural county, and projects in rural counties may not be used as a source of data for a wage determination for a metropolitan county.

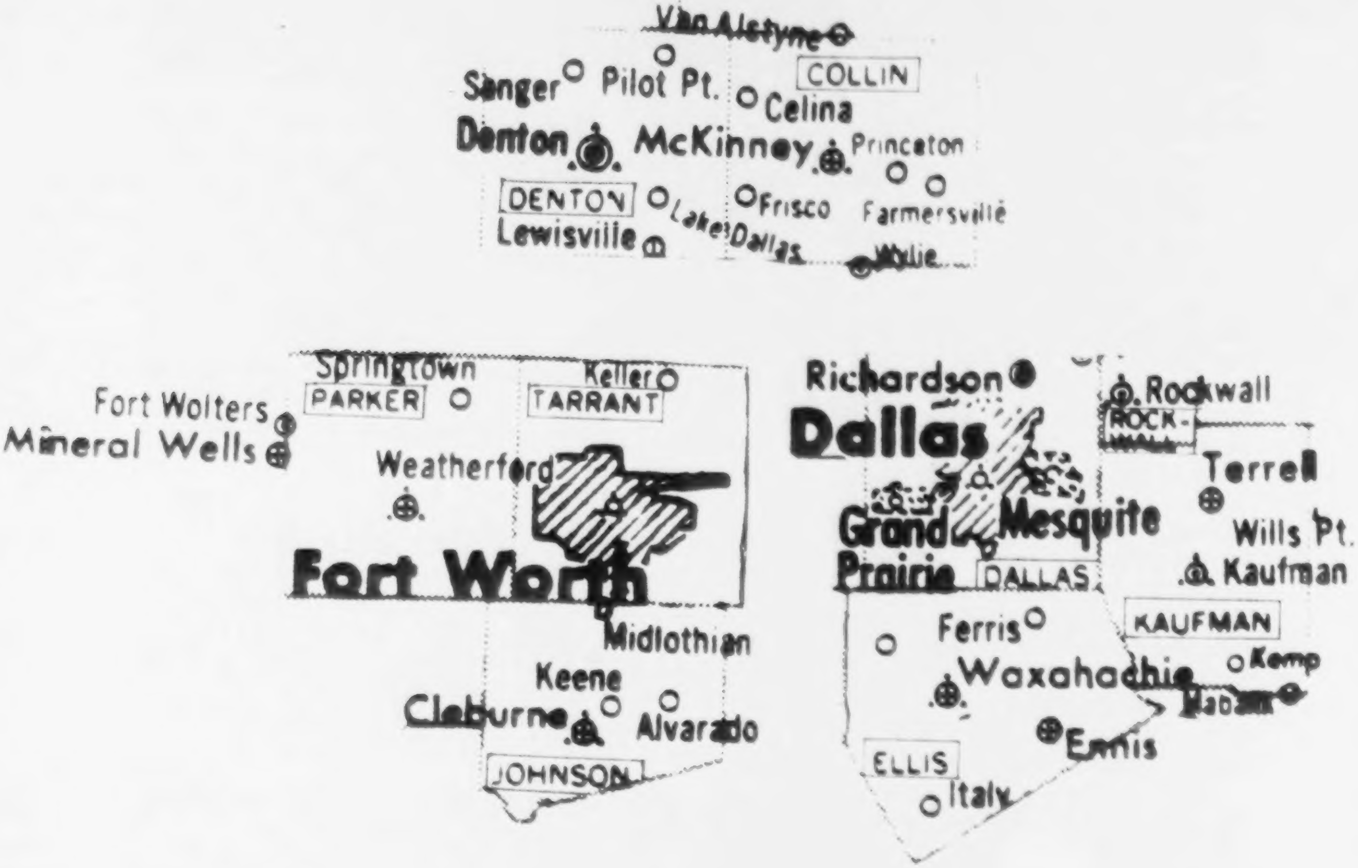
As reflected in the county-by-county summary of the survey data on pages 6 and 7, the data provided did not permit the issuance of separate wage determinations for each county. Similarly, consideration of data from federally assisted projects did not allow distinct county schedules. In fact, only Dallas and Tarrant Counties had sufficient data on which to base the issuance of prevailing wages for at least eight of the key classes. Therefore, in order to form schedules of wage rates for projects that might occur in any of the nine counties surveyed, it was necessary to combine the data from contiguous selected counties.

Since Tarrant County was the only county within the Fort Worth MSA with enough data for a separate issuance, the data from Johnson and Parker Counties were combined with the data from Tarrant County, to form a wage schedule applicable to all three counties of the MSA. This is in accordance with the regulatory requirements, because both Johnson and Parker Counties are urban and there were insufficient data collected to issue separate schedules, or to support an argument that different wage rates are customarily paid in those counties.

On the other hand, in the Dallas MSA, there were sufficient data collected for Collin and Denton Counties to demonstrate a distinct wage pattern. When analyzed individually, there were not enough data collected for either Collin or Denton to meet the sufficiency requirements. However, there were sufficient data to issue when the data from the two counties were combined.

As was the case for Johnson and Parker Counties, there were insufficient data collected from Ellis, Kaufman, and Rockwall Counties to issue individual schedules based on the data adequacy rules discussed above. Therefore, since there were insufficient data collected to support an argument that distinct wage rates are customarily paid in these three metropolitan counties, their data were grouped with the contiguous metropolitan Dallas County data to form a schedule of wage rates applicable to these four counties of the Dallas MSA. Map 2 shows the county configurations for each of the three wage schedules developed and issued as a result of this survey.

Map 2 - County Configuration of Wage Rate Schedules Issued for the Dallas-Fort Worth Area



Helpers. In accordance with Davis-Bacon Regulations, helper classifications and other subclassifications for which survey data have been collected are included in a wage determination only where information was provided to indicate that the use of helpers is an established prevailing practice, where the duties of the helpers are clearly defined and distinct from those of the journeyman classification and from the laborer classification, and where the term "helper" is not synonymous with "trainee" in an informal training program. Survey participants in the Dallas-Fort Worth data collection effort reported wage data for helpers, but there was no detailed information provided about the duties performed, and no indication that the helper duties were distinct from those of the journeymen classifications. Therefore, the schedules derived from this survey do not include helper classifications.

Area Practice. The objective of a wage survey is to determine the prevailing wage rate for employees who are performing the same construction duties irrespective of the name or title assigned to the employees by the contractor. Contractors within a given area may classify employees by various names depending on whether the firm is union or nonunion or simply as a matter of preference, even where the employees perform identical job functions. For example, certain contractors may identify employees who insulate pipe as asbestos workers on their payroll records. Other contractors may classify the same workers as pipe insulators. In these types of situations, careful attention must be given to grouping the wage data for all employees performing a given function under the same classification to determine the appropriate prevailing wage rate for that type of work. To accomplish this, the various classification practices of contractors operating in the area must be identified.

As with most surveys some area practice issues had to be resolved. Area practice issues arose for the following work: acoustical installation; batt insulation installation; drywall hanging; HVAC work; and pipe insulation. These issues were resolved for the classes and areas in which they occurred and are reflected in the new wage schedules in Tables 5, 8, and 11.

Wage Rate Computation. The Davis-Bacon Act requires that the Department of Labor determine the prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits for projects within the geographical scope of a survey. When determining the rules to be applied, the following definitions are used for "majority" and "weighted average" computations:

> Majority. Are more than half of the employees at a given classification being paid at the same rate of pay? For example, if one classification has a total of 30 workers, there must be at least 16 workers at the same wage rate to have a majority rate (application of the "majority rule").
> Weighted Average. If there is no majority rate, a weighted average rate is computed by multiplying the number of employees at each rate paid times the rate, obtaining the sum of these products, and dividing the sum of the products for all rates by the total number of workers employed (application of the "weighted average rule").

For the three schedules based upon the Dallas-Fort Worth survey, the majority rule was used to determine the prevailing wage rate for 43 classifications, and the weighted average rule was used to determine the prevailing wage rate for 21 classifications.

Fringe Benefit Computation. Fringe benefits are payments made by employers to provide pension or retirement plans; health, medical or hospital care; training; and vacation and holiday pay. When more than 50 percent of employees in a single classification are paid fringe benefits, fringe benefits prevail. When fringe benefits prevail for a classification, and more than 50 percent of the employees receiving fringe benefits are paid the same total fringe benefit rate, then that majority rate prevails. When fringe benefits prevail, but 50 percent or less of the employees receiving benefits are paid the same fringes, the weighted average fringe benefit rate prevails. For the Dallas-Fort Worth survey, fringe benefits prevailed for 47 of the 64 classifications for which prevailing wage rates were determined.

SURVEY FINDINGS BY SCHEDULE AREA

JOHNSON, PARKER AND TARRANT COUNTIES

Based on data adequacy requirements, sufficient data were not obtained to issue three individual schedules for Johnson, Parker, and Tarrant Counties. Since these three contiguous counties comprise the Fort Worth MSA, and the data provided from contractors in these counties exhibit like characteristics, their data have been combined into one schedule of wage rates.

Payment data were furnished for 65 crafts, and, based on a response rate of 36.2 percent, prevailing wage rates were established for 23 classifications. The data provided dictated use of the weighted average rule for most of the classifications included. However, use of the majority rule was required for bricklayers, carpenters (drywall hanging), drywall finishers, electricians, structural ironworkers, landscape laborers, millwrights, plasterers, and sprinkler fitters.

Wage rates were not issued for HVAC mechanics, batt insulators, reinforcing ironworkers, lathers, marble setters, paperhangers, hod carriers, nozzlemen, terrazzo workers, tile setters, tile setter finishers, waterproofers, truck drivers, mechanics, oilers, kettlemen, linemen, ames tool workers, and operators of bulldozers, front end loaders, rollers, scrapers, tractors, and riggers, because the data furnished for these classifications did not meet data adequacy requirements. A list of all the classifications for which data were collected, including the classifications that were omitted because of insufficient data, and the basis for the computed wage rates are presented in Table 2.

Previously, union wage rates were issued for all classifications for building construction in Johnson and Tarrant Counties. Union and open shop wage rates were previously issued for Parker County. This survey indicates that union rates now prevail for bricklayers, electricians, structural ironworkers, millwrights, and sprinkler fitters. Open shop rates now prevail for the remaining classifications. Lists comparing the previously issued wage rates with the newly issued rates are presented in Table 3 for Johnson and Tarrant Counties and in Table 4 for Parker County. Tables 3 and 4 also list the percent change in the prevailing compensation (basic hourly rate and fringe benefits) for each of the classifications for which adequate data were obtained. The new schedule of wage rates that has been issued as a result of the survey for Johnson, Parker and Tarrant Counties is provided in Table 5.

COLLIN AND DENTON COUNTIES

As with the Fort Worth MSA, sufficient data were not obtained to permit the issuance of separate wage schedules for each of the six counties in the Dallas MSA. However, there were sufficient data collected for Collin and Denton Counties to demonstrate a distinct wage pattern.

Payment data were furnished for 43 crafts, and based on a response rate of 33.0 percent, prevailing wage rates were issued for 14 classifications. With the exception of structural ironworkers and sprinkler fitters, for which the majority rule was utilized, the basic rates for the other 12 classifications were determined using the weighted average methodology. Wage rates were not issued for asbestos workers, bricklayers, brick tenders, cable splicers, cement masons, cement tenders, glaziers, batt insulators, truck drivers, oilers, kettlemen, and rigger, backhoe, bulldozer, front end loader, and foundation drill operators, because data furnished for these classifications did not meet data adequacy requirements. A list of all the classifications for which data were compiled, including the classifications that were omitted because of insufficient data, and the basis for the computed wage rates are presented in Table 6.

This survey indicates that open shop rates prevail for all classifications, with the exception of structural ironworkers. A list comparing the previously issued wage rates with the newly issued rates is presented in Table 7. Also included in Table 7 are the percent changes in wages, each of which includes the total of both the basic hourly rate and the fringe benefits for each of the classifications for which adequate data were obtained. The new schedule of wage rates that has been issued as a result of the survey is provided in Table 8.

DALLAS, ELLIS, KAUFMAN AND ROCKWALL COUNTIES

Dallas, Ellis, Kaufman, and Rockwall are the remaining counties of the Dallas MSA. Since there were not enough data collected for Ellis, Kaufman, and Rockwall Counties to issue individual schedules of wage rates, data from these counties were combined with data from contiguous Dallas County to determine a schedule of wage rates applicable to the remaining four counties in the Dallas MSA.

Payment data were furnished for 73 crafts, and based on a response rate of 30.4 percent, prevailing wage rates were established for 27 classifications. The wage data dictated use of the weighted average rule for most of the classifications for which prevailing wage rates were determined. Use of the majority rule was required for bricklayer, brick tender, carpenter, electrician, ironworker-structural, lather, paperhanger, plasterer, plasterer tender, and sprinkler fitter.

Wage rates were not established for mortar mixers, batt insulators, landscape laborers, marble setters, pipelayers, hod carriers, nozzlemen, caulkers, waterproofers, truck drivers, mechanics, oilers, bulldozers, cement finishing machines, drill operators, forklift operators, graders, shovel operators, riggers, millwrights, kettlemen, flagmen, door erectors, painters (stilts), cement tenders, and cable splicers, because data furnished for these classifications did not meet data adequacy requirements. The classifications for which data were compiled, including those that were omitted because of insufficient data, and the basis for the computed wage rates are presented in Table 9.

Previously, union wage rates prevailed for all classes for building construction in Dallas, Ellis, Kaufman and Rockwall Counties. This survey indicates that union rates now prevail for bricklayers, brick tenders, carpenters, electricians, lathers, plasterers, sprinkler fitters, and structural ironworkers. Open shop rates now prevail for the remaining classifications. A list comparing the previously issued wage rates with the newly issued rates is presented in Table 10. Also included in Table 10 are the percent changes in wages, each of which includes the total of both the basic hourly rate and the fringe benefits for each of the classifications for which adequate data were obtained. The new schedule of wage rates that has been issued as a result of the survey is provided in Table 11.
